Alhaji Amin was chosen among several nominees from across West African Sub-region because of what the student Union Parliament said were his hard work, dedication to national development as well as his contributions to educational development in Nigeria and West Africa.

The Award, “Kwame Nkrumah Servant Leadership Hall of Fame”, is the highest Regional recognition usually bestowed on individuals and organizations who distinguished themselves in the service to either their country or the sub-region in general by the Parliament.

Speaking shortly after the investiture, the Registrar said he was humbled by the Award, adding that the recognition would go a long way in gingering him to do more especially in his chosen career.

“I wondered how I was nominated and finally chosen among hundreds of other Registrars in the country, for this prestigious regional award”, he remarked. He, however, admitted that “we are today living in a global village such that whatever contribution you make is being circulated and recorded”.

The Registrar stated that whatever feat he achieved in the course of discharging his responsibilities was not his individual making but was a result of collective and team work with management, staff and students of the University, “for this reason,

I dedicate the award to the Bayero University Community”, he remarked.

Alhaji Amin disclosed that the present Management of Bayero University led by Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed nni, MFR was one of the best in the history of the University, which was why he said more laurels, trophies and awards of excellence would continue to be won by the university and its dedicated staff.

He thanked the WASUP and assured them of his resolve to continue to contribute his quota in nation and regional building.

Also speaking, the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed nni, MFR represented by the Deputy Vice Chancellor (Academics), Professor Muhammad Yahuza Bello said the award was really an honour done to the entire university.

He said the University Management and Staff were not the least surprised by the choice of the institution's Registrar, adding that "Alhaji Amin is a seasoned and experienced administrator whose contribution to the University remained equalled and unprecedented". He, on behalf Management and staff congratulated the Registrar.

Earlier, before performing the investiture, the Speaker of the Student Union Parliament, Mr. Gur Lanola Clakibe of University of Kokodi, Cote d'Ivoire said WASUP was founded by the students of West African origin studying in United Kingdom in 1920, to solicit and advocate for equal treatment with white students.

He said today the parliament is the strongest pressure group in the sub-region with membership across the Francophone, Lusophone and Anglophone countries of West Africa.

Mr. Lanota said the Parliament based on Article (4), sub-sections 2 & 3 has the mandate to identify individuals and organizations that distinguished themselves in their chosen careers as well as in nation building and honour them with its prestigious Award "and that is why Alhaji Sani Ibrahim Amin MNIM, Registrar of Bayero University, Kano was chosen among several nominees, both in Nigeria and outside", he concluded.

M.D. Nasiru appointed pioneer Registrar, Jigawa State University

The Director, General Administration of the Bayero University, Kano, Malam Muhammad Danlami Nasiru has been appointed pioneer Registrar of the newly established Jigawa State University, Kafin Hausa.

Malam M.D. Nasiru's appointment, along with the institution's pioneer Vice Chancellor, Professor Abdullahi Y. Ribadu and Librarian, Malam Musa A. Auyo was approved by the Jigawa State Governor and the visitor to the University, Alhaji Sule Lamido CON, as announced by his Commissioner for Education Science and Technology and Chairman of the University Implementation committee, Professor Haruna Wakili on Friday 22nd November 2013.

Pathology Department, Queens Hospital, Essex, England Conducted Seminar on Bowel Cancer

The Department of Pathology, Bayero University and Cellular Pathology Department, Queen's Hospital,

Ramford, Essex, England have conducted a two – day workshop with the theme: “Gastro-Intestinal Pathology”, which attracted national and international resource persons.

The workshop, which started on Monday 25th November, 2013 at the Seminar room of the Pathology Department, A.K.T.H., was aimed at bringing pathologists together to brainstorm and share knowledge with a view to tackling the prevalent cases of bowel cancer in Nigeria.

Dr. Uche Igbokwe, a Consultant Hispathologist, who came from Essex, delivered a lecture on Epidemiology and Biology of Bowel Cancer.

While citing relevant examples of what obtained in the United Kingdom, Dr. Igbokwe explained that the screening of cancer in UK is offered to people at the ages between 55 and above excluding those with contraindications.

The Consultant stated that conducting screening remained sacrosanct but it was not absolute guarantee that one might not get infected, saying it would reduce the incident. He cited an example that one may be conducting screening after every two years but may end up contracting the cancer at the interval, which is called “Interval Cancer”.

The Speaker further discussed extensively on the practicalities of bowel cancer screening, the impact of bowel scope screening, quality assurance and Fical Occult Blood Test (F.O.B.T.).

Dr. Igbokwe argued that the World Health Organization’s principles of cancer screening published in 1968 still remained the best method.

Some of the principles stated that the condition should be an important health problem and there should be a clear cut treatment for the condition.

It also said facilities for diagnosis and treatment should be available and there should be a test or examination for the condition.

“The total cost of finding a case should be economically balanced in relation to medical expenditure as a whole,” the principle added.

Earlier in his opening remarks, the Head of Pathology Department, Dr. A.T. Atanda, said the workshop was a two - day exercise aimed at increasing clinical acumen on making proper and correct diagnosis.

During the comments, questions and answers session, the Doctors in the A.K.T.H raised some fundamental issues as they affected the nature of cancer in Nigeria and the activities of the surgeons.
