

Western Civilisation Breeds Terror Groups – Prof. Maiwada

The neglect by the Western civilisation of spiritual matters and pursuit of secularism, gave rise to a confused duality in the Muslim personality, after Western colonialism dominated the world. This Western domination had been the major set-back for societies across the world, former Vice Chancellor of Alkalam University, Katsina; Professor Danjuma Abubakar Maiwada has disclosed.

Professor Danjuma Maiwada, was speaking on Monday, 16th May, 2016 at Attahiru Jega Twin Theatre, while delivering a paper, titled “Islamic Civilisation: Background, Emergence, Universal Impact and Contemporary Challenges,” during the 3rd Islamic Civilisation Lecture Series organised by the Bayero University Centre for Islamic Civilisation and Interfaith Dialogue (CICID).

He said, the contemporary West emerged with the Renaissance in the 14th, 15th and 16th centuries and in envying the flowering achievements of the Islamic civilisation, reverted to pre-Islamic period of Jahiliyya in its world view. He however, proposed the thesis that, civilisations since time immemorial don’t clash; they come one after the other in a cyclical pattern over time.

The university Don said, Islamic civilisation is being guided by the injunctions of Holy Qur’an and Sunnah of the Prophet, contrary to the secular inspiration of Western civilisation, which had caused the unity of the Ummah to disintegrate. He opined that the action ultimately resulted in the emergence of the so-called Muslim terror groups.

He expressed concerned that although western civilisation had brought benefits such as modern transportation, housing, education and medical care, however, it has come with some associated negative effects especially of moral decay culminating in the horrifying life style choice of same-sex marriage etc.

Professor Danjuma Maiwada, said Islamic civilisation laid the foundation and principles of sciences, medicine, pharmacy, geography, arts and agriculture, amongst others; attesting that even the West had benefitted from such legacies that enriched their pursuit of science and technological knowhow as we know them today.

He then faulted the way the Muslims give out zakat, saying that in 2015 Kano State Zakat and Hubs Board, was only able to collect 15 million Naira and some agricultural produce from one member of the State House of Assembly as Zakat, but nothing else was received. He expressed displeasure that many Muslims default by giving 20, 50 and 100 Naira as zakat.

He commended the Kano state government for establishing the commission, adding however, that the government needs to do more because the amount collected as Zakat in a Muslim dominated and commercial area like Kano is too negligible.

Chairman of the occasion and immediate past Vice Chancellor of Bayero University, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, commended the centre, which he said had started with very serious intellectual activities, even before moving to its building. He implored the centre to relate with Department of Islamic Studies and Shari’a, Institute of Islamic Banking and Finance (IIBF), Department of Arabic, Department of Islamic Law, amongst others to move activities of the Centre forward.

Dean of School of Continuing Education, Professor Salisu Shehu, expressed concerned that “We are not ready as a people, we don’t work. Take journals, you would see that the contributions of Muslims are very inconsequential, we don’t have respect for time; I wonder how people who don’t have respect for time can change the world". He however, contested the notion that civilisations don't clash as mentioned by the speaker in his paper.

Director of the Centre, Dr. Bashir Aliyu Umar, recalled the previous lectures delivered at the centre, saying that they rely on God to achieve the objectives just as he commended the University Management for the support to carry out activities and former Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed for setting up the Centre.

GUIDE TO BETTER GRAMMAR

With Sheriff Ahmed

Common Mistakes in Subject -Verb Agreement (2)

By way of refreshing your memories on the previous lesson, try the following exercise:

Select one of the two verbs in parentheses which agrees in number with the subject. Remember that the verb and the subject must agree in number.

1. A large pile of broken bricks and stones (was, were) left outside the town.
2. Carelessness in the use of simple tools (causes, cause) many household accidents.
3. Abba, along with Shehu, Ladan and Umme, (has, have) decided to become a teacher.
4. The opinions of the critics, not the acclaim of the audience, often (determines, determine) the success of the play.
5. In England participation in class discussions, not just high test scores, (counts, count) toward one's final grade.
6. The players on our team (looks, look) tired.
7. An exhibit of student drawings and photographs (is, are) on display in the main hall.
8. Coach Siasia's remarks concerning Mikel Obi (was, were) most flattering.
9. The loss of the two track meets (leaves, leave) us in last place.
10. In bobsledding, perfect rhythm on the turns, in addition to a certain disregard of danger, (is, are) necessary to win.

The correct answers will be provided next week, God willing.

- Neither Ahmad nor his brothers wants to attend the funeral.

We already know that singular subjects joined by 'or' or 'nor' take a singular verb, as in:

1. Neither a building nor a tree was left standing.
2. Either the level coordinator or the class monitor delivers the message.

Both sentences are correct. In the sentence under review, however, ‘nor’ joins a singular subject (‘Ahmad’) and a plural subject (‘brothers’). When this happens, another rule of agreement comes into play. It states:

When a singular subject and a plural subject are joined by ‘or’ or ‘nor’, the verb agrees with the nearer subject.

If this is true, it means the singular verb ‘wants’ is incorrect.

Correct: Neither Ahmad nor his brothers want to attend the funeral.

More examples:

3. Neither Uba nor his supporters were happy with the result. [supporters were]
4. Either the editors or the reporter is at fault. [reporter is]

In sentence (3) ‘supporters’ is nearer the verb ‘were’ than ‘Uba’, the other part of the compound subject. The verb must be plural to agree with the nearer subject, ‘supporters’. Likewise, in sentence (4) the verb ‘is’ must agree with ‘reporter’, since this singular part of the compound subject is nearer to it.

Some grammarians find this kind of construction awkward, and suggest that it is usually best to avoid it. Rewriting the sentences, you have:

5. Uba wasn’t happy with the result and neither were his supporters.
6. Either the editors are at fault or the reporter is.

● None of the two essentials exist.

The verb ‘exist’ defies the grammatical rule of concord. ‘Exist’ should be corrected to read exists – none of them exists.

GRAMMAR POINT: When you use ‘none of’ with an uncountable noun, the verb is in the singular, as in:

7. None of the work was done.

When you use none of with a plural noun or pronoun, or a singular noun referring to a group of people or things, you can use either a singular or plural verb. The singular form is used in a formal style in British English, as in:

8. None of the trains is/are going to London.
9. None of her family has/have been to college.

- ❖ People in the habit of sharing panties with others may stand a chance of getting the infection; also wearing of moist dirty pants for a long period of time may be a predisposal factor for STDs.
- ❖ Sharing of bath towels and sponge should be discouraged.
- ❖ Some of the STDs are asymptomatic (with no symptoms) particularly in some patients, however, a person infected with no symptoms can still pass the disease to his/her coition partner(s).
