37th Professorial Lecture: Prof. Ibrahim Provides Solution to Wastewater Treatment through Natural Sources

By Nura Garba

A Professor of Physical Chemistry in the Department of Pure and Industrial Chemistry, Bayero University, Kano, Professor Muhammad Bashir Ibrahim, has provided a solution to wastewater treatment through the use of natural materials.

Professor Muhammad Bashir Ibrahim, who presented his Professorial Inaugural Lecture based on his PhD research titled: Adsorption and Thermodynamic Properties of Some Natural Adsorption in Relation to Wastewater Treatment, which was the 37th in the series, on Thursday, 14th March, 2019 at Musa Abdullahi Auditorium, said that, with the help of available current literature from colleagues, maize cob, hardwood sawdust and coal were used for the removal of heavy metals from a single component modelled effluent and from five tanneries situated at Sharada and Chalawa Industrial areas of Kano.

The professorial lecture, titled: Water Pollution and the Quest for its Remediation: The Natural Resource Option, highlighted that water pollution is the contamination of water bodies, usually as a result of human activities (making it unfit for human use and aquatic lives) with cumulative effects over time. He said that according to a United Nations report, there was enough water for everyone, but that access to it was hampered by mismanagement and corruption.

Citing Dara, 2006 and Goel, 2006, Prof Ibrahim said the causes of water pollution include a wide range of chemicals and pathogens as well as physical parameters. Water pollutants could be divided in some general classifications into organic and inorganic suspended solids, sediments, radioactive materials and, lastly, heat or elevated temperatures, which lead to thermal pollution.

Prof. Ibrahim argued that many local/natural materials, which appeared to be waste, may, if properly utilized, turn to wealth and save lives. He said research collaborations and expanded partnership with donor agencies would greatly improve the water sector in the same manner, for such partnerships had improved the health and education sector.

Earlier, the Chairman of the occasion and the Vice Chancellor, Professor Muhammad Yahuza Bello, said the topic was apt and timely, saying that it came at a time when water pollution had caused environmental and health hazards. He commended the Professorial Inaugural Lecture Committee, headed by Prof Mrs T. Oyeyi, for ensuring that lectures were frequently presented.

BUK Hosts Interfaith Seminar on Combating Corruption in Nigeria

By Nura Garba

Religious leaders from Northern states gathered in the Centre for Democratic Research, Mambayya House, Bayero University, Kano, to address the challenges of corruption, which has eaten deep into the fabric of the society, through a seminar organized for interfaith leaders.

The seminar titled: Combating Corruption through Interfaith Platforms in Nigeria, Project 2018-2020 is a three-year project supported by Mac-Arthur Foundation with the aim of bringing Islamic and Christian leaders to have a platform of interaction and cross-fertilization of ideas that will engender viable and sustainable means of addressing the menace of corruption. “The project is carried out in all the 6 geopolitical zones of the country,” said the Director of Mambayya House, Professor Ismail Zango.

Presenting a keynote speech titled: A Crisis of Leadership: The Roots and Routes of Corruption in Nigeria, Professor Habu Mohammed of the Department of Political Science, Bayero University, Kano, traced the historical evolution of corruption in Nigeria from colonialism through military regimes up to present day democracy in which he argued that leaders had played significant roles towards infiltrating corrupt practices in the country.

He explained that the coming of democracy was seen as a period of hope for combating corruption due to the fact that Nigerians were fed-up with the excesses of military rule, it was unfortunate to find out that from 1999 to date, over $55 billion was lost through corruption.

Professor Mohammed said the role of civil society organizations and religious leaders was crucial in combating corruption through constant advocacy and preaching. He added that consistent report of corrupt practices, effective synergy among anti-corruption crusaders and strong willingness were some of the strategies that should be adopted to combat the menace.

Scholars and religious leaders presented papers at the occasion some of which were Islamic Teachings in Anti-Corruption Discourse and Initiatives by the Secretary of the Islamic Forum of Nigeria, Kano,

Participants of the seminar in a session

Professor Salisu Shehu, and Christian Teaching in Anti-Corruption Discourse and Initiatives by Pastor Samuel Adeyemo, the Chairman of the Christian Association of Nigeria (CAN).

CDA Conducts Workshop on Innovative University Teaching

By Nura Garba

A workshop on Innovative University Teaching is being conducted by the Centre for Dryland Agriculture (CDA) in collaboration with the Department of Science Education, University of Copenhagen, Denmark, in Bayero University, Kano.

The workshop, which started on Monday, 25th March, 2019 and was to end on Saturday, 30th March, 2019 was aimed at equipping and enabling the participants drawn from various departments to motivate and capacitate fellow staff to reform their approach to teaching and learning.

Declaring the workshop open, the Vice Chancellor, Professor Muhammad Yahuza Bello, said “this is the third phase of the innovative teaching training”. He explained that in April 2018, 20 academic staff from various departments participated in a training on Innovative University Teaching, Learning and Supervision in the University of Copenhagen, Denmark, while the second phase of the training was conducted in December last year in Abuja.

The Vice Chancellor, who was flanked by the Registrar, Fatima Binta Mohammed, said “the CDA deems it necessary to reposition its teaching and training component in line with African developmental needs and global best practices. “It is in the light of this that the CDA, having reviewed its curriculum, deems it necessary to train faculty staff on modern pedagogy.”

Also speaking, the Director of Academic Planning, Professor Bala Sidi Aliyu, congratulated the cohorts of academic staff carefully selected to participate in the pioneer train the trainer workshop, noting that the University had focused its attention on quality teaching and learning in order to train students in both character and learning.

Prof Aliyu emphasized that the University's Strategic Plan had enshrined all the necessary steps to deepen the quality of teaching and learning in order to maintain the high rate of university graduates.

Earlier in his remarks, the Director of CDA, Professor Jibrin M. Jibrin, said the objectives of the workshop were to build the capacity of staff on modern pedagogy and effective supervision of students and improve learning outcome by fostering critical thinking and the adoption of improved teaching methods.

Team BUK Wins HULT Prize Regional Finals, Qualifies for London Challenge

By Nura Garba

An entrepreneurship team from Bayero University, Kano, Brycoal with focus on Turning Waste into Wealth has won the Hult Prize Abuja Regional Finals after emerging from universities around the world. This gives the team the unique opportunity to compete for USD 1 Million at the United Nations HQ in September.

meeting all the criteria of the organizer's 10th anniversary at a competitive challenge that featured teams from Ghana, Kenya, Rwanda, Nigeria and other African countries.

The challenge, titled: Creating a Venture that Provides 10,000 Meaningful Jobs for Youth Within the Next Decade, targeted huge global youth unemployment challenge.

With this victory, Bayero University has qualified for the Accelerator (Summer 2019), a fully funded incubation period in Astridge Business School, London, for budding young social entrepreneurs

Students are given vital roles to play in changing the trajectory of some of the world's toughest challenges, starting in their own communities and countries this year.

Students from participating countries across Africa had a wonderful time meeting Hamdi Bin Elmi, the Africa regional analyst for the Hult Prize, and the Regional Director, Michael Chizurum, who said "it is an amazing opportunity under the Hult prize for students across Africa to become change makers, who will transform and impact millions of lives".

The team captain, Ubaidurrahman Sulaiman, a 200 Level student of Mechatronics, on behalf of other members, Abdulhafeez Adebayo (400L Accounting) and Mustapha Sani Abdullahi (400L Computer Engineering) stated, "In Africa, to make a significant impact, you need a local approach to a problem. We are very thankful to the school management's continuous support towards this amazing opportunity to witness a life changing event as well as making history to represent the school globally at Hult Prize."

The Campus Director at Bayero University, Kano, Olumide Aro stated, "When young people collaborate and are given the opportunity to become leaders incepted with the attitude and charisma to build sustainable solutions, we create a better future."

SECURITY DIVISION: Security Division's Service Phone Numbers

The University premises in both Old and New Campuses has been bedeviled by security breaches in varying degrees and frequencies. Most of these forms of security breach could be curtailed or even prevented if there is an adequate synergy between BUK Security Operatives and other members of the University Community. Furthermore, in order to enhance the Security Division's distress and emergency response capacity, the University Management has improved the Operational status of Patrol vehicles and increased its phone lines to facilitate security and safety alerts. In view of the foregoing, all members of the University Community are urged to avail themselves access/use of these underlisted phone lines to seek support or alert security operatives on any issue likely to compromise collective security within the premises of the campuses
