Minister of State for Environment Visits BUK, Pledges Collaboration with CDA on Climate Agriculture

By Nura Garba

The Minister of State for Environment, Sharon Ikeazor on Friday, 4th February, 2022 visited Centre for Dryland Agriculture (CDA) in company of the Director General of the Nigeria Agency for Great Green Wall, Dr. Bukar Hassan.

The Minister was taken round the CDA Molecular laboratories and Tissue Culture Laboratory by the Vice Chancellor, Professor Sagir Adamu Abbas, the Director CDA, Professor Jibrin Mohammed Jibrin, Deputy Directors, CDA collaborating faculty members and CDA team.

Mrs Ikeazor, who was highly impressed with the state-of-the-art facilities at CDA, expressed the Ministry's readiness to collaborate with the Centre on climate agriculture and training.

She noted that CDA has a lot to offer to the Ministry in terms of capacity building and mass propagation of date palm at the Tissue Culture Laboratory, assuring that the Centre is the right place for collaboration.

The Centre also distributed seeds, seedlings and equipment to farmers from its adopted 22 communities

Established in 2012 to serve as a regional training hub for the West and Central Africa (WCA) sub-region, the CDA marked 10 years of incredible rise to stardom as one of the most competitive Africa Centres of Excellence with state-of-the-art facilities of international standard, competent and dedicated staffing, as well as vibrant research and training activities.

The Deputy Governor of Kano State, Dr. Nasiru Yusuf Gawuna, who was the Special Guest of Honour, congratulated the CDA for achieving this milestone in just 10 years of existence, saying that Kano State was aware of the CDA's exceptional performance which led to attracting another world bank grant of $5m under ACE Impact.

Dr Gawuna explained that the quality of research and training conducted in the CDA was of international standard, noting that the Kano State Government would collaborate with the Centre to use some of its best researches to formulate policies and to facilitate them to become laws that will address the deepening food security

The Vice Chancellor, Professor Sagir Adamu Abbas, while welcoming the Minister said the University is happy to receive her and expressed the University's readiness for any collaboration with the Ministry. He assured that there are many other avenues through which the University would collaborate with the Ministry.

In his remarks, the Director, CDA, Professor Jibrin M. Jibrin, told the Minister that CDA is one of the Africa Centres of Excellence with students from 14 African countries and one of the three centres selected to host PASET PhD programmes. He said PASET is a programme being sponsored by African governments to train high level manpower in order to address the continent's developmental challenges.

According to him, PASET chose the best centres in Africa challenges.

The Vice Chancellor, Professor Sagir Adamu Abbas, in his remarks, said the day marked a landmark achievement in the annals of University's history. He said CDA has made the University proud and "that's why we hold it with high esteem."

The Vice Chancellor expressed the hope that the University Management would continue to support the Centre to achieve its desired objectives. He congratulated the CDA, its staff and all the stakeholders for the giant strides recorded in 10 years.

Prof Abbas, who also represented the Executive Secretary of National Universities Commission (NUC), Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, said NUC was aware of the CDA's pre-eminent position among other Nigerian and African centres of excellence. He said the NUC would continue to support the Centre.

Partners of CDA, such as ICRISAT, WOFAN, UK Links and Dala Foods presented goodwill messages. They all lauded their partnership with the CDA as impactful.

to host its programmes which CDA is among them, noting that the Centre is hosting a PhD programme on Climate Change. He added that the Centre could collaborate with the Ministry in terms of manpower development and provision of laboratory facilities for analysis.

Speaking on the Tissue Culture Laboratory, the Deputy Director, Research of CDA, Dr. Kabiru Umar Mustapha, said the laboratory has a lot of activities including mass propagation of plants and regenerates of disappearing plants.

The CDA distributed seeds, seedlings and equipment to farmers with the aim of boosting their farming.

Earlier in his welcome remarks, the Director CDA, Professor Jibrin M. Jibrin gave a historical evolution of the Centre and applauded all those who have contributed in making it what it is today. He explained that the Centre attracted students from 14 countries in West, East and Central Africa, just like the idea of great green wall. He said the CDA has already established great green wall of knowledge.

"Under the new project of ACE Impact, our focus is to transform training and research into changing the lives of people in the drylands," he added.

Highlight of the Open Day was presentation of awards to the staff who drafted the first proposal of CDA, two former VC's, Prof Abubakar Rasheed, Prof Yahuza Bello and the current VC, Prof. Sagir Abbas. Others who were honoured were the first board members SIAB Board and outstanding staff of CDA, with whom Dr Gawuna promised to support with motorcycles to three of them (driver, gardener and cleaner), as well as one outstanding extension agent.

ACEPHAP to Partner with Jigawa State on Maternal Health and Nutrition

Arrangements have been concluded for collaboration between the African Centre of Excellence for Population Health and Policy (ACEPHAP), BUK and the Jigawa State Government on maternal, child health and nutrition.

Already, Governor Mohammed Badaru Abubakar has given his blessings and requested ACEPHAP team to work closely with officials of the state Ministry of Health to develop a workable MoU within the next two weeks to seal the collaboration.

The Governor described the proposed collaboration as wonderful and highly beneficial to the people of the State and added that government would do everything humanly possible to make it work.

Alhaji Mohammed Badaru Abubakar, who spoke during a meeting with the ACEPHAP team at his Kano residence on Sunday 13th February, 2022 informed the guests that his administration had invested a lot in maternal health and nutrition. He said government had realized that there were linkages between poor nutrition and maternal, infant and child morbidities and mortalities.

He said apart from the free maternal health services to pregnant and nursing mothers, government had also introduced N5, 000 monthly allowances to pregnant women from poor and vulnerable background to address the issue of poor nutrition. He said 24 hospitals across the state local governments have been selected for the programme.

The governor also revealed that government had introduced free transport for emergency cases of pregnant women in labour, saying that government appointed community leaders of health “Jagakdiyan Lafiya” to among other activities coordinate the emergency transport programme by ensuring early and prompt transport of pregnant women with complicated labour cases.

He said these measures taken by government had gone a long way to improve immunization exercises in the State and raise immunization figure from 7 percent to 90 percent. It has also made significant reduction to the unacceptable maternal, infant and child mortality.

Alhaji Badaru said his administration welcomed the idea of collaboration and assured the ACEPHAP team of Government willingness to partner with the Centre to train Doctors, Nurses, Midwives and community health officers to improve quality of care.

Earlier, the Director of ACEPHAP, Professor Hadiza Shehu Galadanci had told the Governor that the team was in his residence to discuss possible areas of collaboration with the State Government on maternal, child health and nutrition.

She told the Governor that the Centre is currently serving as one of the African Centres of Excellence on health related issues, adding that BUK has two of such Centres; Centre for Dryland Agriculture (CDA) and ACEPHAP.

She said the Centre attained African Centre of Excellence status after participating in a rigorous and competitive bidding and won a World Bank grant of 6 million dollars to conduct research on health issues and train human resource on health through postgraduate training and short courses. She said the centre at the moment runs five postgraduate programmes and has about 30 regional students from 10 African countries.

Professor Galadanci said there is the need for a Memorandum of Understanding with the State Government, adding that some of the major maternal health challenges in the State are eclampsia, postpartum haemorrhage, anaemia in pregnancy and obstructed labour which she said could be tackled through availability of trained health care providers and provision of emergency obstetric care services. 'We are here to collaborate with Jigawa to increase the capacity of your health care providers to ensure they provide quality emergency obstetric care services through training. For this, there is the need to sign MoU to give official backing to the collaboration,' she remarked.

She assured the Governor that her team would work assiduously in the next one week to produce a draft MoU and forward it to the government for vetting.

Mass Communication Dept at 40: VC Hails Decade of Media Transformation

By Nura Garba

The Vice Chancellor, Professor Sagir Adamu Abbas has heaped praises on the Department of Mass Communication, expressing appreciation and commendation to the department for a decade of transforming media industry in Nigeria.

In her vote of thanks, Dr. Hajara Sanda, a 1992 graduate of the department commended the old students for their encouragement and supports to their alma mater.

“We express our deep appreciation and gratitude to our old students for the generous contributions they are giving to the now Faculty of Communication.”

The Majority Leader, House of Representatives, Alhassan Ado-Doguwa, an alumnus of 1990, donated N10 million to the faculty and the department while the Member representing Kano Municipal, Sha'aban Sharada, an alumnus of 2011, secured approval for the establishment of a computer laboratory for the Department of Public Relations in the Faculty of Communication.

Inculcate Good Virtues on your Students ...VC Charges

By Lamara Garba

University lecturers should imbibe the culture of treating those placed under their care as students or researchers as nicely as possible with a view to instilling a good experience that will forever remain in their hearts, the Vice Chancellor, Professor Sagir Adamu Abbas, has urged.

He spoke on Monday, 14th February, 2022 in his office when he received a delegation from the Faculty of Communication when they paid him a thank you visit to appreciate the many support and encouragement rendered to the faculty by the management.

The Mass Communication Department of the Faculty of Communication was, at the weekend, celebrated its 40th Anniversary to reflect on the progress and transformation recorded by the department from 1978 to date.

“As lecturers, we should always give our students a good experience, so that when they graduate from the school

VC, Prof. Sagir Abbas in a group photograph with members of the Faculty of Communication they should always recall with nostalgia, the good experience they had while studying here. I am sure, the good experience will drive them to always respect us, remember us as their teachers, remember the Department and most importantly, remember the University,” he declared.

According to him, maltreating students will not augur well for us individually and collectively. He noted that any student that came to study under you should be treated nicely; this will go a long way in cementing good relationship between an alma mata and the alumni.

Professor Abbas, in particular noted that most of the universities in the developed nations get their funding from members of alumni and this could only be possible when there is an established positive bond between the alumnus and the institution.

The Vice Chancellor, who described the Faculty of Communication and in particular the Department of Mass Communication as one of the most progressive units in the university, urged them to maintain the tempo.

“I must say, Department of Mass Communication is one of the oldest in this university and has been making us proud by attracting a lot of goodwill from corporate organizations, individuals and other donor agencies including MacArthur Foundation,” said the Vice Chancellor.

He equally thanked them on the issue of the unbundling of the Mass Communication Program which he said the department has been the been of the forefront in initiating the project.

Earlier, the Dean of the Faculty, Prof. Mustapha Nasir Malam told the Vice Chancellor that they were here to appreciate the support rendered to the Department which led to the successful organization of the 40th anniversary celebration.

He said the event was a huge success which attracted participants from all over the country and abroad with the Emir of Kano in attendance as an alumnus.

The Dean disclosed that some of the alumni have supported the unbundling program with a promise by a member of the House of Representative Honourable Sha'aban Ibrahim Sharada to provide a 100 special purpose digital economy centre for the proposed Department of Public Relations and Advertising with relevant software applications.

This centre will consume several millions of Naira and already, the National Information Technology Development Agency (NITDA) had promised to supply sophisticated computers and other accessories including alternative power supply and internet connectivity.

Equally, the Majority leader in the House of Representatives, Honourable Ado Alhassan Doguwa had donated ten million Naira to the Mass Communication Department and the Faculty which the money had since been collected.

An elder in the Faculty, Professor Abdalla Uba Adamu commended the foresight and the visionary qualities of the Vice Chancellor with a solemn declaration to do all within their capabilities in order to succeed and make Bayero University great.

By Nura Garba

Vice Chancellor, Professor Sagir Adamu Abbas, has expressed the University's sincere appreciation to the Image Merchants Promotions Limited for instituting

Yusha'u Shuaibu presenting scholarship award to VC, Prof. Sagir Abbas for best students in PR, Digital Economy while Dr. Hajara Sanda looks on annual prizes for the best students in Public Relations and Digital Economy in Bayero University, Kano.

The Vice Chancellor said the awards would spur the students to redouble effort in boosting their academic performance. He commended the PR giant for living up to the expectation of the rapidly changing digital media space.

While receiving a cheque of One Million Naira for the prizes spanning over ten years (2022-2032), the Vice Chancellor lauded the IMPR for its various interventions in the mentorship of students and young communicators in line with the digital media space. He expressed the hope that the prizes would be effected at the forthcoming convocation ceremonies in March this year.

Earlier in his presentation to the VC, the publisher of IMPR, Yusha'u A. Shuaibu said the awards were instituted to motivate and inspire students to develop interest in public relations practice and innovations in digital activities that are key sectors of today's globally evolving economy.

The Vice Chancellor commended Dr Hajara Sanda for luring the Mass Communication Department's alumni to donate projects.

The Publisher, who was accompanied by Dr Hajara Sanda, said the awards would be dedicated to Professor Bashir Ali (PR) and Dr. Ali Isa Pantami (Digital Economy) due to their immense contributions to the fields as each of the best students would smile home with N50,000 annually.

The IMPR Chief Executive was later honoured by the Department of Information and Media Studies for providing opportunity to its students to undergo their Students Industrial Work Experience Scheme (SIWES). A letter of appreciation was presented to him by Professor Abdalla Uba Adamu, who was assisted by the Head of IMS

Department, Dr Nura Ibrahim and Dr Hajara Sanda.

Shortly afterwards, Dr Hajara Sanda took media men round to see the facilities donated to the Department of Mass Communication by her Class 1992 Chapter. The facilities include a well furnished common room, computers, printers, internet gadgets, DSTV receiver, DVD decoder, set of cushion chairs and many others.

Dr Sanda explained that the common room can be used by all the staff in the faculty.
